Round 1

Round 1 - The Top 10.

Ok, Round 1 is over and what a big scoring round it is. I generally don't recommend making any trades Round 1 unless you have a serious LTI or suspension.

If you are looking to make a trade I have collated the top 10 players from each area based on their value. The tables below show the Top 10 players based on a Breakeven value. For Round 1 purposes this assumes the player has played twice and scored identically both games, to maintain their price in Round 3 they would need to score above their breakeven to increase in price. The lower the breakeven the better value the player represents. I have also shown this as a Peak Price based on the current average so you get an idea of the peak price should the average continue.

Adelaide Crows

Not much to say about the Crows, they were fairly dismal against Fremantle. Tippett and Griffin struggled against Sandilands and the pressure from a well organised youthful Fremantle side was too much. Expect Adelaide to improve as the rounds progress and some senior players return to the side.

Brisbane Lions

Amon Buchanan injured his thumb on the weekend. This may open the door for those who picked Tom Rockliff.

Collingwood

If you didn't grab Heath Shaw at the start, I wouldn't start rushing to jump on just yet. He has shown problems when given a forward tag and his scores can fluctuate quite significantly.

Dane Swan also backed up an impressive 2009 season scoring a very impressive 143. If you have this man in your team I don't think you can pass him up as a captain option considering they are playing the youthful and injury struck Melbourne.

Essendon

Ben Howlett performed well for Essendon and looks likely to be one of the best cash cows for the season if his form continues.

Fremantle

Michael Barlow the rookie who scored 128 on debut. During the game he appeared to be a clear target grabbing many of Sandilands dominant taps. He had numerous clearances and appeared to be a clear target for Fremantle players. Given that only Pavlich and Duffield received a tag is it possible that Barlow may attract some attention in the near future?

Geelong

Darren Milburn is out for 2 weeks with a Hamstring injury. This could open the door for another youngster in the side. It is also possible James Kelly or Jimmy Bartel may fall back to help in defense during this period.

Hawthorn

Luke Hodge killed it in Round 1, however he was hardly unique selection hyped from a very early stage of the year, if you didn't select him perhaps look at him at the end of Round 2 if you have problems in your backline.

Given the Hawks ruck problems and their opponents in Geelong consider avoiding setting a Hawthorn player as captain this week.

Melbourne

Despite a poor performance the young stars of Melbourne provided more than adequate scores. Don't be discouraged by scores in the 60's because these players will still peak above $250,000 at the current rate which is a good result from a first year player.

North Melbourne

Liam Anthony showed why he is priced at $422,000 racking up 132 dream team points. No small feat for a player in his 11th AFL game. If this form continues he could rise well into the $500,000 territory and prove a good pickup for any of the brave souls who selected him.

Port Adelaide

Kane Cornes showed why his is a legend in Dreamteam scoring a huge 131 in the win over North Melbourne. Concerns over his role and security in the side may have eased after round 1 and Cornes could be one of the better midrange selections of the year given his proven durability and scoring history.

Richmond

From the weekend's performance this side looks like bottom 4 material, however it is still early days. I would avoid selecting any Richmond players at this point other than the rookies who should get plenty of opportunities this year.

Sydney Swans

Tadhg Kennelly has issues with the concussion he suffered against St Kilda and is a chance to miss this weekend.

Nick Malceski also has some reported neck problems and is also a chance to miss this weekend.

Ensure you have a solid emergency in your backline this week if you have either of the above players in case they are late withdrawals.

Western Bulldogs

Not much to report from the Dogs, I expect the team to bounce back with a big win against Richmond this week.

West Coast Eagles

Worsfold has come out and said Dean Cox will share rucking duties with Nicnat until round 6 as Cox regains match fitness. If you have Cox and he performs as poorly next week can you afford to hold him for 6 rounds and see?
